Abstract: This collection consists of over 4000 unique posters dating mostly from the 1980s-1990s. Duplicate copies of many of these posters exist. 327 posters from the collection have been reproduced in the book "Images of Defiance: South African Resistance Posters of the 1980s" by Ravan Press. A considerable number of posters also feature in the STP publication "Red on black: The story of the South African poster movement". Some of the posters are also available in slides (See AL2432) and digital format. The collection includes a large number of posters from the End Conscription Campaign (ECC), the United Democratic Front (UDF) and also includes posters relating to women, youth, AIDS, Congress of South African Trade Unions (Cosatu) as well Anti-Apartheid Movement (AAM) struggles.

Introduction

During the years from 1975 to 2000, South African artists, activists, and organisations produced over 5000 political posters. These promoted, engaged, and recorded the struggle to build a non-racial, non-sexist, democratic, united and free South Africa.

By the late 1980s, some poster-makers and organisations began to collect these posters, as a record and as a commemoration of their history. When the South African History Archive (SAHA) was established as an independent repository for struggle history by anti-apartheid activists closely linked to UDF, Cosatu and the ANC, these posters became a founding collection. Over the next years, organisations, poster-makers, and activists added to the poster archive, with additional posters from the UDF, the ANC, the SA Council of Churches, and the ECC.

One of the earliest posters in SAHA's collection is a Communist Party poster from the 1940s, calling for "Work, food, houses" for all.

The South African History Archives today holds over 4500 posters produced within this movement.

This poster is an offset litho in black, produced by the Student Union for Christian Action (SUCA), Cape Town. This poster depicts the existing issue of racism when coloured or Indian people conscripted into the army. Even though the coloured and Indian people would have the 'privilege' of being conscripted into the army in return for the vote, they would remain politically subservient to the white government. The text reads "Subservient in Power : Equals in Defence : from CONSTITUTION to CONSCRIPTION : When JUSTICE rules, then will PEACE reign." Digitised by Specialised Archival Solutions in 2009. Reproduced in "Images of Defiance: South African Resistance posters in the 1980s" on page 32 (number 46) of the 1991 SAHA / Ravan Press edition and the 2004 SAHA / STE Publishers edition.

protect the right to water". As part of the 'Phiri Water Wars' - which saw residents in Phiri in Soweto engaging in an intense battle with the City of Johannesburg/Joburg Water against the introduction of prepaid water meters - residents of Phiri, through the Coalition against Water Privatisation (CAWP), instituted a constitutional rights legal challenge in 2005. This poster was to mobilise CAWP members and other communities to participate in a march against Joburg Water in support of the case which was being heard in the High Court. Although the outcome of the legal case in the High Court saw prepaid meters being declared unconstitutional and the City of Johannesburg being instructed to provide additional 'free water', subsequent rulings by the Supreme Court of Appeals and then the Constitutional Court over-turned the High Court decision.

This offset litho poster was produced by the Coalition against Xenophobia (CAX) in November 2008 and the text reads: "Shut down Lindela : No one is illegal". In 2008, after widespread and violent attacks on immigrants, the majority of which took place in the Gauteng province, the Anti-Privatisation Forum (APF) together with a range of other social movements, community organisations, NGOs and immigrant associations, formed CAX. Over a period of several months, CAX organised a mass march through inner-city Johannesburg, helped provide legal and material assistance to victims of attacks, conducted educational workshops in communities and engaged in a 'Shut Down Lindela' campaign (Lindela being South Africa's main 'detention centre' for 'illegal immigrants' prior to deportation).

[2006 - Access image - jpg]

This is a digital born poster and the text reads: "Anti-Privatisation Forum (APF) : Working class struggle in action". This poster was produced by the Anti-Privatisation Forum (APF) in 2006 and captures in striking form one of the APF's most famous tactics - the mass rally/march. The picture, taken at a rally/march a few years earlier, was chosen to represent the core constituency of the APF's community affiliates - women - and to celebrate their strength, leadership and contribution.

[2006 - Access image - jpg]

A digital born image, this poster was one of several general posters the Anti-Privatisation Forum (APF) produced in 2006 and distributed widely over the next several years. The wall mural (which was done by the APF affiliate, the Orange Farm Water Crisis Committee) speaks to the link between community struggles against water and electricity cut-offs and 'liberation'. The slogan – 'Working Class Struggle in Action' was the APF's main organisational 'identifier'.

[May 1989 - Access image - jpg, Preservation image - tiff]
This is an offset litho poster in full colour with a photograph of the Voëlvry artists. This Afrikaans poster was issued by Shifty Records and the Vrye Weekblad for the two-month long Voëlvry music tour of mostly South African university campuses (from which they were mostly banned from performing) during May and June 1989. The text reads: "SHIFTY Records & Vrye Weekblad bied aan : die VOËLVRY TOER : BERNOLDUS NIEMAND en die Swart Gevaar : ANDRÉ LETOIT : Gereformeerde Blues Band". A high resolution digital image was donated by Catharina Scheepers for SAHA's Shifty Records Legacy Archive Project. This poster was digitised by ORMS in 2014. Included in the SAHA physical and virtual exhibitions 'What you won't hear on the radio', developed to mark the 30th birthday of Shifty Records and the 25th anniversary of the Voëlvry tour.
