Dear Mama:

Last night I received your letter with enclosure of darling Bilda's letter. I am glad to hear you are keeping well & hope that the epidemic of Smallpox will soon pass without any harm to you.

I am sorry I still have to tell you the same thing, that is that I have not yet received definite instructions regarding my departure. Am still waiting & hoping. I am sure you are sick of it - & so am I you may believe me. Still there is nothing I can do which I am not doing. And there is nothing else I can think of for the moment. I am rather surprised you should still have had to pay 30 Reuk. I was under the impression, that that part was done with except the interest. Will you please see

Mr. Radomtzeff. I am sure, all the instalments were paid already long ago. You should only have to pay interest on the second mortgage. However you know best, I can not count here what was paid.

Mr. R. will give you another £20 to go on with. Of course it does not settle our question, but we must keep going. Have you let the rooms? Of course they would not have discharged you if I were there, and may be some one will have to answer me for it one day. At present I am doing all I can for the best of all concerned.

Keep well & cheerful.

Love to you & the children
Thank Hilda for her letter.

As ever yours
Sans

Dear Mama !

Last night I received your letter with enclosure of darling Hilda's letter. I am glad to hear you are keeping well & hope that the epidemic of smallpox will soon pass without any harm to you. I am sorry I still have to tell you the same thing, that is that I have not yet received definite instructions regarding my departure. Am still waiting & hoping. I am sure you are sick of it & so am I you may believe me. Still there is nothing I can do which I am not doing. And there is nothing else I can think off for the moment. I am rather surprised you should still have had to pay £30 rent. I was under the impression, that that part was done with except the interest. Will you please ask Mr. Kadomtzeff. I am sure, all the instalments were paid already long ago. You should only have to pay interest on the second mortgage. However you know best, I can not count here what was paid.

Mr K. will give you another £20 to go on with. Of course it does not settle our question, but we must keep going. Have you let the rooms? Of course they would not have discharged you if I were there, and may be some one will have to answer me for it one day. At present I am doing all I can for the best of all concerned.

Keep well & cheerfull.

Thank Hilda for her letter.

As ever Yours Sam
