My dear Benjie,

I am enclosing you a book list which coincides with my first lessons!

Those books I have ticked (✓) I already have.

The books I need urgently, of course, are the textbooks. In some subjects, as you will note, I have the necessary textbooks. However, I am sending you all the lists for all the subjects so that you may be able to find out from friends which are the most desirable supplementaries.

My special period is economic history, 1830 - 1860 on which I am expected to work on this relatively. I shall, therefore, be grateful if you could get me the supplementary these notes. *

The lessons are arranged so as to enable me to write the exam in 1967. It was going to work as though that is when I sit for the exam and if by October next year I am tempted to take the plunge I'll apply for a change - the examination date! I am tempted to get the damn thing out of the way I had always liked exams.

This is all for now. Will write again with you.
With best wishes,
Dob.

* After consultation, of course.
