On the whole the new draft Constitution will be accepted but there will be mann controvery mix on two clauses, mixthex

One is the membership stanse; clause which does not confine membership to Africans only. Although this is not a new clause in the Constitution, infact this clause is as old as Congress itself, an argument is being advanced that the new there is a need to insert a colour-bar clause - that only Africans can be become members.

It is further argued that Congress today has become an attraction to all sections of the community and that there is a great temptation among other groups to join Congress. It is, however, evident that the avarwhalmin overwhelming majority of the delegates at conference will reject the colour-bar clause.

The other is under the Auxiliary Bodies, Women's eache end the Youth League. The draft Constitution does not only recognise the existence of the organs in Congress but gives them organisational autonomy. They must have their own constituon as well as their own cards. The idea being to broaden their organisations to imax include non-Congress members. This is resisted by the majority members in all provinces, even women and some of the Youth Leaguers are not in favour of this freedom except very few in both groups. It is elmost certain that desn'te the fight the Youth League leadership will stage for organisational autonomy, this clause will be amended.

The main discussion of the conference will naturally centre around the campaigns against the Fass laws, Group Areas which will include other removal schemes, and the restrictions imposed on the trade union movement. The Urban Areas Act which debars Africans from trading in Non-African areas which has resulted in chasing business and professional men from Many branches in their reports have quoted the case of the young Advocate Mr Duma Nokwe, Assistant Secretary-General of the A.N.C. who has been told by the native Affairs Department to find offices in the African residential areas, the cases of Mr V.V.T.Mbobo and Dr R.R. "ahlangeni both of East london who have been forced by the City Council to go and open their offices and consulting rooms in the location. HEREEXILLE In the rural areas, the Mamahlola tribe in the Northern Transvaal, the people in Kirkwood and Lankey in the Eastern Cape who are being uprooted and prosecuted will be cited to urge Conference to take positve steps to fight against all forms of removals.

Another matter which will come up for discussion is the Freedom Charter which was adopted in at the rlando special conference in April of this year. When A conntroversy might hax arise on the fact that the Freedom Charter necessitates further clarification of Congress policy as reflected in the "African Claims" and the Programme of Action of 1949.

The "African Claims" demand that Congress be admitted in all councils of state. Rights which are presently enjoyed eclusively by Europeans whereas the Freedom Charter demands the creation of a new democratic society based on the will of the majority of the people . In the 1969 Frogramme of "ction, there are two perts which will

The forty forther and the guestion of boycost must now be changed.

The second is African nationalism. Some ballawaxthat members will advocate for an adequate explanation as to the precise meaning of African nationalism as understood by Congress.

With the hith annual national conference of the African National Congress taking place in Queenstown next week, December 15, 16 and 17, the rank and file membership of Congress as well as the masses of the African people are awaiting with great anxiety the outcome of this conference. For the Queenstown is associated with high political and militant decisions.

The last conference held in Queenstown in December, 1953, unanimoulsy resolved to sponsor the Congress of the People and ER also called upon the African people to embark on an economic boycott which was very successfuin the Eastern Gape.

Coming before this conference are five very important issues, the new draft Constitution, Multi-racial conference, the Pass Laws, the roup Areas Act and the question of the trade union movement.

Inspite of these issues there seems to be less excitement about the conference mixthextendingxCongression Johannesburg show that reports reaching the headquarters of Congress in Johannesburg show that branches throughout the country are making arrangements to get to the conference. The opinion of leading Congress members is that one reason for the apparent lack of excitement is the fact that the present leadership is becoming mature despite the difficulties underweiteds conditions under which they work due to the bannings and other restrictionsthat have been imposed on the more matured leaders.

Delegates to the last two conferences have been seriously criticised by the leadership for being too emotional both in their deliberations and resolutions. More emphasis has been laid on more concrete and systematised asyxafxwarkingxx work in creating effectient units to carry out the struggle more than in agitation.
