Dear Mrs. Kadalie,

When your wire came here I was away. It was therefore impossible for me to do anything before now.

I write to confirm the words I wrote in my wire expressing my deep sorrow about the sad loss to you. I am sure you know how much I feel sad about this passing away of my dear Comrade. I am really confounded. I see the work that has been left with you. To look after the I.C.U. work in East London. To look after your home and to look after your son's education. All these things came to my mind when thinking of your life. You looked after Mr. Kadalie well during the difficult times. You pulled him out from many things and you built a home for him, rebuilt his name and built the home of the I.C.U. in East London. You actually took him to his people to bid them Goodbye in Nyasaland. All this speaks well of you Mrs Kadalie. I learned to admire you more than many women. That is why I say in my wire I shall always remain true to you. I tried to be true to Mr Kadalie up to the end of his days.

Christmas and New Year's busy days have come, otherwise I would be coming there to see the grave.

Yours fraternally,
