Dear Sally,

I have had a letter from Bob Sobulow telling me that he wrote to you some while ago, but he later discovered that you had changed your address and he is therefore not sure whether his letter reached you.

In any event, he says that the cigarettes, etc., are reaching him regularly, and he expresses his appreciation. He said that you could spare yourself sending him records. My own feeling, however, is that if it is not proving any burden to you, it would be a good idea to continue sending him records. I have written to him to say that I would express this to you.

My grateful thanks to you for your efforts on his behalf.

I hope you are keeping well.

Sincerely,

BENJAMIN POGGIARD
