master and by the Crew.

- (b) He must be recommended by the Group Council as a Scout who is trying to act up to his Scout obligations, including the doing of good turns, or if not previously a Scout he must be willing to learn practical Scouting, pursue the open-air life, and accept the way of life set forth in the Scout Promise and Law.
- (c) The age for admission to a Crew is necessarily dependent upon the physical and mental development of a boy in his progress to manhood. He must be at least eighteen years of age.

On admission to a Crew he is known as a Pathfinder Rover Initiate until such time as he is invested as a Rover. A Rover Initiate who has not been a Scout must pass the Tenderfoot Test and make the Scout Promise and be invested as a Scout.

39. PATHFINDER

Uniform.

A Rover Initiate wears uniform as for a Scout and the distinguishing badge of the Association, but the shoulder-knot will be green and yellow.

The degree of ceremony used in the vigil and the investiture will vary, and this must depend upon the wishes of the Crew and of the individual to be invested.

41. PATHFINDER
ROVER SCOUT Training.

As a training in ideals the Pathfinder Rover Scout will :-

- (a) Develop the spiritual side of his life, recognising that he must do his best to carry out his duty to God as required by the first part of the Scout Promise, through the practice of his religion.
- (b) Make the guiding principles of his life the Scout Law, expressing itself in goodwill, fellowship, justice and brotherhood.
- (c) Carry out the first service of duty he owes - to establish himself in life - and make every endeavour to consolidate his position so that he is not a burden on others or on the state.
- (d) Carry out the Scout duty of helpfulness to other people as required by the second part of the Scout Promise into some form of service to the community, bearing in mind the special claims of the Scout Movement, but with due regard to other loyalties, e.g. home and employment.

As practical training the Pathfinder Rover will :-

Scouting and Rover Scouting - and assist in every possible way - e.g. by qualifying for the Rover Instructor Badge or for a warrant.

- (b) Have a practical knowledge of the matters dealt with in Chapter III of "Scouting for Boys". (Camp Life).
- (c) Adopt generally, as part of his outdoor activities hikes and rambles with a purpose on the lines of the First Class Journey Test, submitting reports and sketches, paying particular attention to any points to which he may be directed by his Pathfinder Rover Scout Leader, and as part of such training he may qualify for the Rambler's Badge.

- (e) Cultivate the habit of employing usefully his spare time - e.g. hobbies, or by studying, exploring and, as far as possible, practising one or more of the directions of citizen service suggested in the appendix to "Rovering to Success".

As training in his responsibilities as a citizen, the Pathfinder Rover will have an elementary knowledge of the government of his country and district, so that he understands the responsibilities imposed upon him for the general good.

A Pathfinder Rover may take up a warrant without ceasing to be a Rover, but his duties as a Scouter must come first. The possession of a warrant will not give him any precedence as a Rover.

If occupation, age, or other circumstances prevent a Rover from taking an active part as a member of his Crew, he can become an Honorary member of the Crew, in which capacity he will continue to do his best to carry out the Scout ideal in his daily life.

The appointment is made by the Group Pathfinder Scoutmaster, Pathfinder Rover Scout Leader and the Crew, and must be renewed every year, but an Honorary Pathfinder Rover may remain a member of the Pathfinder Scout Brotherhood up to any age.
