Mongate. Thursday.

Darling Maria. I have no got the letters we received from you this week, by me to answer, as I've sent them to Vene at Eastbouring so I cut remember what to answer you, oh, you don't want me to go to Russie, well, I'm not gring (9 don't think so, at agrets). so plat's alleight is it it? I don't know where I am going for my holidays, though. I have 'n' settled mything get + I don't much want to go away on my own of the only people ? comes go with I don't want to . I think I shall have my holidays the first 2 weeks in September. Someone from my ffice has been telling me of a lovely place in Sintegeland of trying to persuade me to go thee, (it's quite cerifur, le's not going the himself) but I don't much want to go by myself + I havelet enough musy to land here to go, I've oney just may for yelly & I don't know anyone who love gh ming to pay to come with me. I wont to Eastborne for the week-end again. It's always sunny when I'm there or I had two lovely balles on Sunday. They would it let as bathe on Saturday as the sea was too rough, so Ruby of went to a tra-dance of Dale of Keelys. On Sunday we spent the whole waring on the peach of it was lovely or in the after non. Ruby of wer fraley walk. In just going out of must post this letter before I go, so I cour write my more. I've write a lor mest week, I'm sorry I've written so given, but I did it beel like it butil tright tum I'm guig out. hoto flow of kisses. XXXXX. Dega.

Tell the day " we write to be too wed week,

Oprie 24th Hoom 3 Olkley Clambers, also for the little white jersey which I got last week. It is very sweet & arowed just in time for some cold weather. The last two days have been really cold the first cold weather this year, I very early in the year for it, too. Last week and Easter - 9 spent at Camp. I write to Vera all about it oo wor't winte it again, but of course I had a gargeons time as usual. Good Inday I had a fairly lagy day, child some washing of stuff, I went to bed early. I had to work on Jakinday, of course. Jame as at John Oms - Ralf past for eight to half palst five only we finish at 12 o'clock on wednesday, a work until six on Datudays I have had the opportunity of taking two other jobs since I we been I at Paramount one was at a Itudio - £8 a month (9 answered an ad: in the paper)

1 the other was through Gestelners, also £8 a month 600 of course I didn't take either of them. Leithe of them. The enaps that glanette took on my braithday came out very nicely - all lecept one which is nother awful. Her mother is taking them over, so you can see how I look of all the twenty! If you want enlargements of any of them you must write o let me know! This is the two piece Ruit I made trom the malenal that was given to me, it looks very nie with a your jumper. I machined it at Beggings place, Henry last make, but it wasn't Hose newspaper you sent so 9

Stopped to look through them

Thanks for Dending them I'm Easter Then here the Rand the Rand a stand for the tumon Greyhamas I helped hem, & it looked rather mile whom it was finished except that the graphorms Donething I hope you are well, I do on I'm fine fots of lots of love Alda

This week I had no letters at all from overseas, so wonder if I will get extra ones next week. I did, however, receive last week the apron and handkerchief that you sent, and they are very nice, many thanks. Rusty liked the handkerchief, and I have been wearing the apron all the time, because it is convenient to be able just to tie it around. Also it gives me a good idea of what to make for presents for people!

Patrick and Frances also received the puzzles that Vera sent, and they are delighted with them. Patrick has got his first reading book, the same one that Tony once had, and is practising without stoppings he is terribly keen to learn to read, and I think that he will learn fairly quickly. He likes his school very much. He was so proud when he came home with a note for money to get his reading book. Tony covered it with brown paper for him, and wrote his name on it. Of course, Frances wanted a reading book as well, so Tony found the old one she used to have, which is rather wessy and full of pencil and crayon scribbles, but Frances is delighted because it is the same as Patricks, and she pretends to read the letters the way he does too.

I told you last time that we were having a terrible hailstorm. Well, I did not realise just how much damage it did. The grape vine was nearly cased to pieces, all hanging down to the ground, and theearth was thick with grapes and leaves. My vegetables were just about destroyed, I had the most marvellous tomatoes nd beans, but they were smashed to pieces, and in some places you could not even find where the tomato plant had been, except for a stick left standing there. The tomatoes that were left were so badly marked, they just went bad. We had hug pumkin plants, but the leaves disappeared entirely, leaving a few large pumpkins dotted here and there, as though attached to nothing. I had a lovely bed of orange and red daisies in front, and it was beaten down and nearly destroyed. However, thegarden has begun to recover now from the hail, and it gives you an idea of how heart-breaking it must be for a farmer to see his crops and fruit destroyed that way.

There has been quite a glut of fruit recently, and we have been getting water melons, mangoes, pineapples and other things cheap at the market. Therehas been so much of it, that the children hardly touch it now, except Tony likes certain things like watermelon and mangoes, and can sat it all up, and as for me, I will never get tired of fruit, but got on eating it without stopping.

This is Sunday, it was a beautiful morning, and we went to Kensington Park with the children just for a change, but this afternoon it has become cloudy and thereis thunder and lightning, and it is going to rain. We have had a lot of stormy weather lately, although it is hot in between. Yesterday it was hot and we had a lovely afternoon at the swimming bath, and Rusty went to watch the cricket. We went to Violet Weinberg in the evening, her mother is well, and the children are growing up. Her son, Mark, is a brilliant boy, he reads and discusses all kinds of scientific books, and is very interested in them.

I am expecting some people to come this afternoon, so I won't write any more now. Everybody is well, and yesterday I went to town with Tony and bought her a tennis racket - she is starting to learn tennis at school - and also a black bathing costime (it cost £2.9.6, the racket was cheaper) because she wents to take part in her school gala, and to take part she must have a black costume. The only cheaper costumes you can get are woollen ones, and Tony is like Olga- she makes such a fuss about a woollen costume, it's too scratchy, she can't bear it next to her skin, so I had to get the expensive satin elastic kind. I have spent all my money again - just a few things here and there, and it has all gone.
