

4) For much the same reason, later told you that about a week ago the doctor came around looked down my throat, put a stethoscope over my chest (looked at my ankles (? Ben Ben or what?)) asked about my nerves, appetite etc, got the standard reply - all right - and then at the end said he had a statement from head quarters alleging that I was in a state of complete nervous & physical collapse. Damn! This came from you, believe me it isn't true. Physically, I am in order. My nerves are really playing up, and I feel almost all the time as though I am just about to make a speech at the City Hall steps. Am very very jittery, internally for no special reason, and feel as though I am as old as father Time, and shaky as a leaf.

5) I was really worried about what will happen to me if I am not changed by the 9th day, but got back in here for another stay. I know that, whatever hell it plays on my nerves, I will see this 9th day out, but if it goes on after that, well, I don't know how long I will survive it without being reduced to complete jelly. I am only now, I think beginning to realize what a beating my nervous system has taken over the last 4 years - ceaseless tension, made worse by the strain of a home arrest when everyone who set foot in the house caused me to tighten up. And finally the weeks, so much I could even now think of them too

6) calmly, when every day I had to see myself by logo in the Marshall Square, expecting to be kept there for 90 days! And now I know that I am pretty close to the end of my nervous tether. I am at my worst at breakfast - a few hours thereafter, they pick up during the day. I don't care anything to help me here, please feed appropriately. I don't think that, if it got to this stage and seemed likely to be held for another stretch, that I would try a bargain for an exit pass against a statement of the kind I once sent you. But now I know that even here they will agree - as with B - a quiet withdrawal. So there is a really bleak prospect - unless changed which is what I hope for now - just to be able to talk to people!

(17) Gilgoh is a great friend of Yokawa's perhaps ~~she~~ can get some true information on idea charges are likely.

It is told by ops that there are at present, 5 groups of 5 people, to be charged separately, & that he is the only white definitely tied up with Umkato.
Get the impression from Dukes, that in my case they will rely entirely on my supposed "executive position" in the movement - his phrase - and my association with the AG house. But whatever it is, if only they would do it, stop torturing us.
Cannot wait for news of book's case. Restide he has technical knowledge, and b) Dominy was introduced to me by the former Stan, a D. lives near Leary's shop. Would you ask him? really, let's present. Don't know what you tell the kids of our correspondence but leave it to you to tell his whatever story you think fits, perhaps say it was brought out by someone? I'm obviously eating now, but DON'T see. I will until next. All my love to you my darling. Hold thanks for me!
