NO APARTHEID EXECUTIONS

On wednesday 28th October the South African authorities announced that they were going to execute seven people on Friday 30th September and a further six on Tuesday 4th October. Among the latter were the Addo Four convicted of the murder of a white farmer and his wife. SATIS immediately raised the matter with the Foreign and Commonwealth office and called for a vigil on the night of Monday 3rd October.

When the seven were executed on the 30th September, it appeared that the regime was bent on resuming the spate of judicial murders which had been suspended since March. However the lawyers of the Addo four have secured a 30 day stay of execution. Also on the same day news arrived that two of the three NUM officials sentenced to death had been acquitted on appeal and released. With the cases of Robert McBride and the Sharpsville six still outstanding and the Addo
