My Darling!

Some time ago I wrote you but, of course, did not get a reply. I hope you received a letter, though, because it had some news from Mrs Mkhale. Since then, I have heard from Mili well - a very lovely letter!

Nenti and Mercy have been here. They spent about a week. Mercy is still as big as she was last year and Nenti looks the same.

I asked Mercy to get me some stuff on Benjie's account - the same as I discussed with you. I chose very expensive items and will up an account of R46.00 ity six rands. I have written to enjie to suggest that at least £100 (twenty rands) could come in from the amount boys ay for sends.

Incidentally, Benjie has written a very fine letter, too. He wants to know what more he can do for the children. I have sent him my suggestions.

Yesterday I wrote to Ernie, which on a rather serious matter, affecting my health I have also written to the Minister of Justice on the same. I may require you to come down some time soon, for a week or so. If it becomes necessary I shall send you telegram, but I should like in, meanwhile, to find out whether you can get a week's leave at short notice. Better still, discuss this matter with Benjie.

That will be all for now, darling. I shall write were late.

Love to the children

Your loving husband,
Mangi
