

Motivation for Alastair Teeling-Smith for the post of National Organiser

Alastair has a good working knowledge of ECC - he has been involved in a range of subcommittees since 1985 and he is now Treasurer on the executive (a job that he has done very efficiently). He has also been involved in several multi-organisational initiatives (he is at present on the Exec of the 1986 Arts Festival Group) so he has had plenty of working contact with organisations outside ECC.

Alastair is a very hard worker - a fact perhaps not fully grasped by all his Cape Town fellow activists, because he manages to get things done with the minimum of fuss. He is also very good at leading / coordinating /inspiring others, because he is very likeable and approachable and is permanently optimistic and conveys this optimism to those around him. He communicates well with others (his sound understanding of psychology has enabled him to deal very well with hostile elements). He is able to maintain control of situations - he keeps his head and doesn't lose his cool - and has a pleasant sense of humour.

Alastair is also very practical - he is able to sum up a situation and realise what is needed while most people are still theorising. He is articulate, and is able to chair meetings well.

As far as appearance is concerned, Alastair seems respectable (apparently) and is suitable for display purposes (i.e. presentable). No security policemen would dare detain him - they'd think he was a member of the English aristocracy.

(Dear D., if deemed going too far and not at all funny the writer of this motivation grants permission for the last paragraph to be chopped off.)
