During the last few menths there were many reports in the world press with regard to the struggle of the Negro toiling masses against inportalist oppression. In Africa, America and the West Indies, wherever the Negro workers are being ground down by the imperialists, the movement of protest is widening, in some localities turning into open redellions and uprisings against the exploiters.

Despite the armed forces of the imperialists, despite their armies and mavies, the Negro masses are compelled by their insufferable conditions, to challenge their oppressors and to fight them in the unequal tattle.

In the Spring of 1929 the French Government finally crushed the Megro redeliton in EQUATORIAL AFRICA which had lasted for more than six months. With the aid of machine guns and bombs the workers were driven back to their hellish work.

In the NATAL PROVINCE (South Africa), the natives are continuing their struggle which, during the last seven months led on two occasions to serious outbursts; in various other sections of the Union native workers have come out on strike to improve conditions. A strike even occurred among the indentured workers at one of the brickkiln plants. This shows that even the compounds and the guards no longer suffice to keep these workers in slavery. It was only when a police squad of 100 armed men arrived on the scene that the capitalists were able to break the resistance of the workers and drive them back to work.

In BARBADOS, one of the Islands in the British West Indies, the local Negro Workers' Union organised a big demonstration when the Commission, under the chairmanship of Lord Oliver, recently arrived to "investigate" labor conditions on the sugar plantations.

In GAMBIA, another British colony, the native workers put up a militant fight for the right to organise. The movement was subsequently suppressed by the troops called in by the foreign capitalists.

A collision between the Hegroes, the police and the troops also took place in Southern Nigeria, another Mritish Colony. There were 45 killed and many wounded. The reasons for the hative rising in this colony are the same as in the other localities, namely, the intolerably high taxation, and exploitation, in this case, of the small peacent, who is compelled to give away his agricultural produce to the capitalist at low prices. An interesting fact was the way the women participated in the movement. Even the Under-Secretary for Colonies in the Heuse of Commons said that there was quite a large number of women among the rebels who suffered.

In HAITI, more recently there was an armed rising of the native workers against American Imperialism, under whose iron heel this Negro Republic has been greaning for the last 15 years.

There were several big demonstrations in MADAGASCAR against

world is handicapped to a considerable degree by the lack of co-ordination between the various movements and the lack of contact between themselves and with the international labor mevement as a whole.

The majority of the Negro masses are still giving their support to those leaders, like the GARVEYS, the CHAMPIONS, the RANDOLPHS, the KADALIES & Co., who are simply tools of the imperialist bourgeoisie.

In the South African Union we still have MR. BALLINGER heading one of the Megro Unions. This individual is a member of the Independent Labor Party of Great Britain, the very same party which tegether with the Labor Party is responsible for all the crimes perpetrated by MacDonald's Covernment in the various colonies of the British Empire.

We still find large sections of the Megro workers in the USA endeavouring under the influence of their conservative leaders to gain entry into the reactionary AF of L instead of joining the only real proletarian unions in the United States, embraced by the TRADE UNION UNITY

west,

Only when the Megro workers shall have thrown off the troscherous leadership of the fakers, and join the international revolutionary movement of the working class, will they be able to wage a consist-ent struggle against Imperialism. For it is only in alliance with the international proletariat that the Megro workers will be able to three off the chains of their exploiters.

The FIRST INTERESTICUL NEGRO WORKERS' CONCRESS WILL BE COM-VENED IN JUNE 1 9 3 0. This Congress will lay the foundations for the organization of all the Negro workers on an international scale and will unite the Regro workers' movement with the intermational revolutionary working class movement. This Congress will open a new page in the hintory of the age-old struggle of the Hegre masses for freedom and omancipation. It will form the beginning of the final decisive struggle against Imperialism to build up a new social order, where there will be neither masters nor slaves, neither rulers nor suisd, where Labor will reign supreme.

ATRICATE MASSACRED BY BRITISH IMPERIALISTS

Bespite the efforts of the British imperialists to suppress: the news of the recent revolt of matives in the Southern Province of Nigeria, West Africa, press tempetobes reveal the horrible way in which an uprising of Negro workers was put down. A bloody massacre of native Africans, including eighteen unarmed women by British troops occurred in Apobo, Asako and Calabar a few weeks ago when the natives refused to pay an increased tax imposed upon them by the Government.

British and French importalisms are the dominant political powers on the African Continent. These two sations control the largest torritories including the bulk of the populations.

France helds say over 4,100,200 square miles of territory with a population of about 48,550,000; while Great Britain's share amounts to 3,820,274 square miles, inhabited by 30,897,000.

The policy of administration in these territories vary according to certain objective conditions, chiefly climatic. In those regions favourable for colonisation by white men, the administration to entirely in the hands of the European officials, --- Governors and Commissioners, who rule over the blacks with the ruthless despotism of colonial czars.

In sections where the climate makes it unfavourable for whiter to settle, the Covernment tends to assume a different form without in any way releasing from the grips of the imperialists a stronghold on the political and economic life of these spheres of influence.

In such cases, the Government is carried on by foreign admin-istrators. This system is known as the Crown Colony form of government, with a limited amount of autonomy for the mative rulers, called Paramont; Chiefs, who play the role of lackeys for their imperialist masters. Withis recent years a thin strata of black petty-bourgeois landlords have come into being, and to these have been granted a few political and social concessions in order to head-off their nationalistic aspirations. All of these classes combine in oppressing the broad masses of workers and peasants.

Higeria belongs to that type of colony which can be fittingly described a "model" Crown Colony --- a jewel in the British crown.

There the Governmental apparatus is entirely in the hands of a Governor, the official representative of finance-capital, who is assisted by a bureaucracy made up of Europeans and middle-class Africans. Economically, the country is rich in natural resources, with a large population, excellent harbors and navigable waterways.

Although not considered a very unhealthy land, especially along the coast line, Nigeria has never attracted large settlements of Europeans. There are only 5,200 whites, mostly soldiers, administrators, traders and missionaries, out of a population of 20 million blacks. The fact that Migeria has never been thickly settled by whites to a large extent determined the hard policy that has been pursued in the past. This policy differs to a considerable extent from that followed in the East African colonies, such as Kenya, Hyasaland, Tanganyika, as well as Rhodesia and South Africa. Nevertheless, the British imperialists through their direct agents and sections of the native population have always been able to entrench themselves and as effectively exploit the natural resources of the country and enslave its toiling masses in other parts of Africa.

Because of the size of Nigeria, which covers an area of 335,700 square miles -- four times the size of Great Britain, with a population greater than that of the combined populations of Canada, Australia and New Zealand, one can fully appreciate the tremendous importance such a possession is to British Imperialism. Therefore, any ferment among the masses is looked upon by the capitalists as a bad omen -- a sign that their days of robbing are numbered.

It is in this fight that we must view the conduct of Mac-Donald's "Labor" Government --- the lackeys of British finance-capital, whose representative in Nigeria ordered the troops to shoot the unarmed Negroes.

In this, the third period of world capitalism, the British bourgeoisie tremble at every upward move of the workers. With the everincreasing fighting mood of the proletariat of the metropolitan countries and the spirit of revolt permeating the colonial and semi-colonial masses, the entire international Social-Democracy, headed by the British fakers-MacDonald and Henderson are more and more on the alert to show their capitalist masters that they can suppress colonial revolt as barbarously as a Chamberlain or Baldwin. The same "Labor Government that murdered the Arabs in Palestine to-day turns its machine-guns on black slaves in Migoria.

The people of Nigeria are largely peasants who resent the idea of working for white men. Therefore in order to expropriate them, the imperialist government has a systematic program of taxation levied upon huts, land-holdings, and crops. In this way it is hoped to be able to place the natives in such an economic position whereby they will be compelled to seel their land in order to escape taxation. When this has been achieved millions of peasants will be turned into a class of land-less proletarians who will be forced to go and work on the plantations. factories and mines for trusts which are reaping millions and millions of dollars annually in developing the tin, manganese, coal and agricultural products such as palm-oil, cotton and cocca.

At present all the mines are in the hands of British syndicates. For instance, the Rigerian Tin Combine, a subsidiary of the allpowerful Anglo-Oriental Mining Corporation, employs thousands of workers for the "magnificent" sum of 18 to 24 cents per day for ten and twelve hours labor. Capital is also flowing rapidly into construction work, such as the building of railroads, ports, street-car systems, electric and gas plants. The colonial governments assume these loans through British banks which control the steel and electrical industries of England. In order to guarantee the payments of interest on these loans the natives are taxed to the fullest extent which increases the burdens of their lives.

The revolt was a protest by the peasants against the neferious scheme of land robbery, and because of the peculiar African social system which imposes upon the women the financial burdens of family life, the women were among the vanguard in the struggle.

- Eo .

These militant and ocurageous women were the ones who organised the demonstrations in the villages and aroused the broad masses of people to protest against British Imperialism.

To enthusiastic was the response to the slogan of "Down with the Imperialist Oppressors" that the entire districts of APOBO and CALA-BAR were in a state of revolt. The local administrator, known as the Resident, immediately ordered troops from the garrison in the Couthern Province and instructed them to shoot into the unarmed crowds of native demonstrators. Forty-five were wounded, eighteen women killed by rifle fire, and ten dead of wounds.

As a result of this dastardly deed carried out by the direct representative of MacDonald's Socialist Government, the entire native population of South-Hastern Nigeria is in a state of ferment. Native and white troops commanded by English officers are in entire central of the APOBO and CALABAR districts, which have the appearance of military areas.

The international proletariat, ESPECIALLY THE WORKERS OF GREAT ENTRAIS MUST CONTINUE TO EXPOSE THE HANGMEN ROLE OF MACDONALD, WHO NOT CHLY "RAILHOAD" INDIAN WORKERS IN MEERUT TO GRADUAL DEATH THROUGH INCARCERATION IN COLONIAL DUNGEONS, BUT OPENLY MASSACRE UNARRED BLACK WORKERS WHO DARED TO PROTEST AGAINST THE MOST DASTARDLY AND HIGH-HANDED FORMS OF IMPERIALIST SUBJUGATION IMPOSED UPON THEM BY BRITISH CAPITALISTS.

The rumblings of the Wall Street crash in New York recounds all over the world and especially in Latin-America as the resent cable information from Haiti proves it.

According to reports of the State Department of the US an armed uprising of Haitian peasants of the city of Jacmel took place December 5. The first thing the rebels did was to cut off the telephone and telegraph wires in order to prevent the bringing home of information to the Powers that be of the Haitian Republic.

The Secretary of State Stimson asserts that the insurrection in Haiti has started in the latter part of October by university students who have developed a strike at that time.

There are also serious uprisings in Los Cayes, an important coffee plantation centre possessed by American interests. Twenty-five American concerns suffered a great deal because of the existing unrest in Maiti.

Haiti is considered as a protectorate of the United States. Hence the American Covernment acts there as a dominating Power, and the American Righ Commissioner at Port Au Prince, the capital of Haiti, has enforced Martial Law which as a matter of fact exists there quite a few years.

At Port Los Cayes has occurred a clash between the workers of the city and US marines. The latter fired at the natives killing five and wounding twenty. After this assault the Secretary of State Stimson has deemed it necessary to despatch 500 marines, a cruiser and a few acroplanes. Thus we see that the US Government is preparing to suppress the haitian rebellion.

Stimson contemplates to explain the cause of all the uprisings of the different strata of the Haitian population and states that in connection with the coming elections, "political agitators were inciting to further strikes" as a result of which the strike wave is spread throughout the country.

Is this the real cause of the present insurrection in Haiti?

The american Government attempts to obscure the real issue which forced the natives of Haiti, the oppressed Negroes of this Royallic, to uprise and rebel as a matter of fact against the US big capitalist interests, against American imperialists and its lackey, the United States Government.

Let us see what has actually forced the natives of Haiti to rebel.

The Negro Republic of Haiti is one of the countries in the Carribean Sea, whose economic and strategic importance doomed it as inevitable prey to American aggrandisement.

The importance of the Caribbean region to the United States lies in its proximity, above all in its commercial advantages as a source of raw materials and a market for manufactured goods.

As a strategic military addition to the Panama Canal it is also of great value to American Imperialism. The opening of the Panama Canal raised the Caribbean to a commanding position among the trade routes of the world. In addition the Caribbean is the gateway to the Panama Canal, the American magnates are trying their best to subdue it to their power and treat it as a vassal region. The strategic importance of the Caribbean has impelled the United States to secure naval footholds in that region. By turning Haiti and Santo Domingo into protectorates, the United States Government has acquired the Mole St. Nicholas in the former, and Samana Bay in the latter, as first class naval bases.

Thus it is not surprising that the US imperialists are greatly interested in Haiti's affairs. As far back as 1647 the United States attempted to obtain control of the harbors of Samana Bay, on the Easter Coast of Santo Domingo, and of Mole of St. Nicholas, on the Northwest Coast of Haiti, as stated, for avowed use as navol bases. In 1891 the United States sent Admiral Charardi with a considerable fleet to Port au Prince, capital of Haiti, to negotiate for the cession of Mole St.
Nicholas, but the Haitian Government refused to discuss the matter and the fleet was recalled.

But the strategical importance of Haiti is not the main thing. The industrial, commercial and financial interests of the U.S. imperialist in Haiti is of still greater import. The policy of the U.S. State Department in Haiti became definite only then, when the National City Bank of New York, the largest and most influential financial enterprise of the country, has entered into Haiti. In 1881 the National Bank of Haiti, founded with French capital, was entrusted with the administration of the Haitian treasury. In 1910 this bank was re-organised in connection with a new government loan taken by French bankers, and replaced by the National bank of the Republic of Haiti, which, like the old institutions, was entrusted with the administration of the Haitian treasury. Under the contract with the French bankers the bank was to make certain annual loans

Soon after this financial operation was performed, the National City Bank became interested in this affair, and Secretary of State Knox, under the Presidency of Yaft, pursuing the latter's policy of "dollar diplomacy" intervened in the matter and objected to the contract saying that "some American banking interests ought to be represented." He called a conference of the New York bankers, with the result that in 1911 the National City Bank, Speyer & Co., Hallagarten &nCo., and Ladenburg, Thalman & Co., each became subscribers to 2,000 shares of the new bank.

This success of the American bankers required a great structle for the US imperialists were at that time not as powerful in world financial affairs as they are now, German interests, exceedingly powerful in Haiti at that period both commercially and politically, demanded a large participation in the re-organised bank and opposed American participation The attitude of the French Government, however, was emphatically against inclusion of German capital without American participation, and the final arrangement, completed in 1910, gave only about 2,500 of the total of 40,000 shares of the National Bank of Haiti, to the "Disconto Gesellschaft a semi-governmental German institution. About 8,000 shares, as stated above, were held in New York by the four above -mentioned prominent banks.

and a few shares in Haiti. The remainder of the stock was held in France.

Shortly after the European War broke out, Secretary of State Bryan, during the Presidency of Wilson, having interviews with the American bankers "suggested -- according to reports of Senate Haiti Hearings --the advisability of the American interests acquiring the French shares in the bank, and making it an American bank. The suggestion was repeated from time to time, and after some extended conferences... the National City Bank purchased all the stock held by the other three American parties." This occurred in 1917. Two years later, "after several suggestions from the State Department ... the National City Bank purchased all the assets of the French institution for $1,400,000". Hence the National Bank of Haiti fell into the hands of the largest financial concern of the United States -- the National City Bank of New York, i.e., into the hands of the greatest financial interests of the world.

The State Department took upon itself to insure the bankers! investment. On six occasions during 1914 and 1915 the Department made direct proposals to Haiti to obtain control of the customs taking as a protext the internal political disturbances. In October 1914, Secretary of State Bryan (the same Bryan; who during the Presidential elections of 1396, 1900 and 1908 was running as a Presidential candidate issuing anti-imperialist slogans), wrote to President Wilson: "It seemed to me of the first importance that the naval force in Haitian waters should be at once inereased, not only for the purpose of protecting foreign interests, but also as evidence of the earnest intention of this Covernment to settle the unsatisfactory state of affairs which exists." (Foreign Policy Asso-

When a revolutionary outbreak occurred in the North Province the State Department took advantage of the situation of that time in order to propose to President Zamer that he would be kept in power if he would sign a treaty turning over the custom houses to American centrol. The President refused to compromise the independence of Haiti and resigned. On December 10 the newly chosen President was formally presented with an identical proposal by the American Minister in Haiti, and again the propossl was turned down. (Senate Hafti Hearing).

One week later a contingent of United States Marines Landed in Port au Prince, proceeded to the vaults of the National Bonk of Caiti, and in broad daylight forcibly soized $500,000 and carried it abroad the gunboat Machias. The money was transported to new York and deposited in the vaults of the National City Bank. This money was, as a matter of fact, the property of the Haitian Government which had deposited it for the redemption of paper currency. Haiti at once protested against this violation of her sovereignty and her property rights and requested explanation from the United States. The latter didn't deem it incressary to respond.

According to the testimony of Roger S. Farnham, Vice President of the National City Bank, before a Senate Committee in 1921, this raid of the marines was arranged by the State Department and the National City Bank. There is no doubt that the State Department contemplated by depriving Naiti of ready money to force its Government to sign a treaty turning over the custom houses to the control of the American Government, which could this way protect the interests of the United States imperialists collecting all the debts imposed upon the Haitian Government by the American financial interests.

On January 28, 1915, Secretary of State Bryan wired via the Nevy Department to Admiral Caperton, in command of American forces in Hai-

"You will issue to that Government a warning that any attempt that might be made to remove the funds of the bank will compel you to take into consideration means to prevent such violation of foreign stock-

In March 1915, the United States Government cent a mission to negotiate with the Haitian Government for American control of the customs, and again Haiti turned the proposal down. In May another commission errived and presented the draft of an agreement providing for military protection and intervention by the United States Government, for arbitration of claims made by foreigners, for prohibition of the cossions of Mole St. Nicholas, or its use to any other Government. The last clause shows clearly that the Washington Government fulfils the orders of its masters. i.e., the Wall Street magnates with the National City Bank of New York-For Germany, as the US Government had been informed, not at the head. only contemplated but had taken preliminary steps towards securing exclusive customs control of Haiti and a naval base at Mole St. Nicholas.

This proposal was being negotiated when on July 27 a revolution broke out in Port au Prince. No doubt that it had been provoked by the Powers that be of Washington and Wall Street as similar methods were used in the case of Panama and Nicaragua'. President Guillaume Sam fled to the French Legation, and on the same day a number of political prisoners were massacred in the prison of Fort au Prince. On the morning of July 28 President Sam was dragged out of hiding and killed. During atl these disturbances not a single American or other foreigner was molested. Nevertheless, on the afternoon of July 28 an American warship dropped anchor in the Harbor of Port au Prince and marines were landed by Admiral Caperton. And all this had been done by the order of the State Department in order to assist the American large capitalist interests in their expansion policy.

The Haitian legislature met to elect a new president to fill the vacancy caused by the assassination of Sam: Under order from the State Department, Admiral Caperton forced the legislature to postpone the election until the American naval officers could canvass the situation. The purpose of this interference with the elections of a nominally independent Republic is shown in the message sent by Admiral Caperton to the Navy Department on August 2, 1915:

"Large number Haitian revolutions, largely due existing professional soldiers called 'Cacos' ... They have demanded election Bobo President ... Stable Government not possible in Haiti unless Cacos are disbanced and power broken.

"Such action now imperative at Port au Prince if United States desires to negotiate treaty for financial control of Haiti. To accomplish this must have regiment of marines in addition to that of Connecticut ... As future relations between United States and Haiti depend largely on course of action taken at this time, earnestly request to be fully informed of policy of United States.

Admiral Caperton now attempted to force, at the point of marine bayonets, the treaty which the State Department and National City Bank had failed to obtain through negotiation and through financial pressure. The first step was to obtain a candidate who would be willing to serve American purposes. Such a candidate was found in the person of Sudre Dartiguenave, who offered, if elected President of Haiti, to accede to any terms made by the United States, including the surrender of customs control and the cession of Mole St. Nicholas. Regarding this candidate Admiral Caperton wired the Navy Department at Washington on August 5, that he "has never been connected with any revolution" and "realises Hait; must agree to any terms laid down by the United States ... If elected must be sustained by American protection."

Dartigueneve was seting not out of choice, but out of a realisation that before the rifles of American marines Haiti was helpless.

He begged only "as far as possible to avoid numiliation."

Admiral Caperton, frankly protecting the interests of the National City Bank, ordered the Covernment of Haiti to restore the treasury Service to the Mational Bank of Haiti, which the Government had withdrawn in January when it discovered that it could not draw money at its own

On the day on which the Haitian legislature "voted" for the new President, US marines guarded the doors of the chamber and Admiral Caperton's chief-of-staff circulated among the congressmen, imposing upon other the henchman of American Imperialism. Dartiguenave was "elected" and acted as a true lieutenant of Wall Street.

We are not in a position to give the full mistory of the suppression of Haitian people, especially the tellers of this country, by American imperialism. Since that time US capitalism prevails not only in financial affairs but also in industrial, commercial and agricultural pursuits of Haiti. The United States Government is as a matter of fact ruling Maiti, dictating and controlling each step the Maitian people are contemplating to undertake.

Such a state of affairs had its influence upon all the strata of pepulation provoking them to resistance. The present uprisings are, no doubt, a sequel of the oppression of a nation depriving it of any opportunity to determine its own destiny. Especially this oppression is felt by the poor peasants and agricultural workers who are exploited by the American capitalists applying their methods of intensive work in a country with a tropical climate.

The present rebellion in Maitie is a sign of time showing that the Latin-American countries are not willing to stand the political and economic oppression of the American imperialists.

The duty of the Profintern and the Comintern is to aid the revolutionary elements in Easti in organising in the first place the ags ricultural wage earners. They are the most exploited workers in Latin-America as the US plantation owners are the most ruthless exploiters, in the world. The poor peasants also should not be neglected for they are treated as penns.

THE STRIKE OF NEGRO WORKERS IN GAMBIA

2 6 8

A very serious movement sprang up among the workers in Gambia, a small British Colomy on the West African Coast. As a matter of fact, Osmbis, with its population of 200,000 matives and 200 whites is the domain of the PELMAIN CO., a branch of the International Lever Margarine Trust. Last summer the workers in Bathurst, the chief town of the colony, decided to organize a union to struggle for decent living and working conditions. Of course, the fact that a union should have been organised, and mind you; by former Negro slaves, could not be tolerated for one moment by the representatives of "democratic" Britain, who even at home, in "free" England, are not slow to put through anti-trade union laws. Last October the manager of the Company in Bathurst demanded that all the workers leave the union within 72 hours. The workers decided to strike for the recognition of their right to organise.

The local authorities immediately proclaimed martial law in the towns Proops patrolled the streets and made no bones about using their bayonets whenever they saw a few people collect together. Despite the general reign of terrer the workers continued the strike for more than one menth, while more troops had to be called in to suppress the "disturbance"

Very instructive was the conduct of the so-called Labor Government, and especially Sidney Webb, the historian of British Trade Unionism, new the scale Lord PASSFIELD, His Majesty's Secretary for Colonies. Despite the fact that information had arrived in London at the end of October that the manager had presented an witimatum to the workers and that a telegran arrived on Revender 15 that the troops and the police had run smeet in Extinuent, were attacking the local population, the Government paid no attention at all to these events. Indeed, answering a question in the House of Commons, the Colonial Minister said that he knew nothing at all about the events referred to and that in general the whole affair was so trifling that he had no intention of making any inquiries at all.

There is no doubt that this first collision with organised capital will sud in defeat for the workers of Bathurst, but their movement will not only prove a big factor in raising their own class con-sciousness, but will expose to the working class throughout the world the true character of the present Labor Government and the leaders of the Labor Party of Great Britain.

Todayou the in the PERSECUTIONS IN CUSA

A recent communication from Cuba reports another foul murder by the agents of HACHADO, the Dictator of Cuba, Another name has been added to the long list of revolutionists killed and butchered since Mechado's advent to power. This time it is a Communist, a Negro worker, SATIJA BROOMS, who it appears was killed the other day in Havana by the hirelings of reaction.

This new orime, not to speak of the continued persecution of all revelutionary Regro and Chinese workers, whoma that the Dictator of Other is continuing his policy of terrorising the workers, hoping in this fashion to prevent any revolutionary move on the part of the work-ore of Cuba.

Alle unample, sly

of Conser conjunated

But Machado is badly mistaken if he thinks persecution and suppression will stay the development of the revolutionary movement. Though the workers' organisations are being personted, the leaders being killed in cold blood, their papers being closed down, accompanied by mass orrests and deportation of native workers as well as foreigners. sions are not wanting that the working meases of Cube are rapidly veering over to the Left.

The recent repressions against the Repre workers of Cuba show plain enough that the Communist Party and the revolutionary unions here have now really got a footing among the rank and file, among all the Nagro workers, exploited as they are to the bene in the sugar plantations and the factories.

In Cuba, like in all the other Republics on the Caribbean seapound, the Americans have begun of late to introduce on a wide scale colored labor to take the place of the native workers. Thousands upon thousands of Megroes are being brought in from Haiti, San Domingo and Jamaica, to out the present standards of the natives, --- low as they are already. The Negroes are transported in ships specially chartered for this purpose and upon their arrival are divided among the planters, who with the assistance of the police and the State troops see to it that these men do not leave the plantations to look for better jobs.

MAS a Fatter of fact, the Government of Cuba tried to make cut that it was bringing in Megre werkers because there was a shortage of labor in the country. The reason is of course that the American Companies find it for mere profitable to employ imported labor, for they have to pay the gative workers 60 centave per day, whereas the Negro workers on the plantations are paid anything under 40 centavo.

A strong campaign was carried out by the revolutionary unions and the Communist Party urging that the wages of the Megro and Chinese warkers be the same as the whites; the Negroes to have the right to look for work in all the enterprises and industries of the country. Last May Day, the Communist Party was able to get the foreign workers to take part in the demonstration. The Chinese, and the Negro workers, too, marched down the streets of Havana side by side their Cuban fellow-warkers, the demonstrations being headed by banners urging unity and solidarity between the fereign workers and the workers of Cuba.

There are hundreds of workers lying in the Havana prisons today for having belonged to the Anti-Imperialist League and the Communication of the Party. But the revolutionary struggle continues. Although the first strike were suppressed by violence, court-trials, arrests, and the murder of the strike leaders, several strikes have occurred escently in Cuba in which the workers put up a very stubborn fight. Besides the strikes of the boot and shoe operatives in Havana, the tomato-packers in Matajas, the bakers in Cuines, only just recently there was a strike of the workers in the Havana sugar refineries. This strike began in the middle of coptember 1929 and on October 17 it was still on. It was called by the workers and Peasants' Federation of Cuba, affiliated to the Latin-Imerican Confederation of Labor, as a protest against the introduction of a case-cut. Altegether 825 workers took part in this strike, among whom were many unorganised workers. Recent information to hand shows that although Machado imprisoned 21 workers for taking part in the strike, he was unable to get the men to return to work.

What with the tyrannical regime, the severe depression that followed the break-down of the Government's financial policy has considerably worsened the position of the working class and the petty-bousgeoisic. Unemployment is now widespread. The minimum wage of 1.50 pess per day, fixed by the Government, does not suffice to keep the body and soul together. Imports from the USA have fallen in view of the marked reduction of the purchasing power of the population.

Thanks to the "efforts" of Dictator Machado, Cuba until quite recently was a very citadel of reformism in Central America. But for the first time in many years the reformists were unable to jot a hearing last May Day. The First of May demonstrations organised by the Communist Party and the National Confederation of Labor were more revolutionary and larger in scale than any demonstrations that had taken place during the last few years. Recent information received states that the Sixth Last few years. Recent information received states that the Sixth Last Convention which was to be held in January 1930, has been put off indefinitely. In all probability it was decided to postpone this gathering in view of the way the refermists are being fought in all parts of Central America of late and the fact that the workers' organisations in Cuba completely condemned the idea of convening this Convention in

We are convinced that the murder of C.MJA DECOKS, the Negro Communist worker, will prove a revolutionising factor. It will unite the whole working class of Cuba, all the white and colored workers to strugtle together against the class enemy. And there is no force that national reaction in the service of imperialism can put into the field that can stand up against the united front of the working class.

UNDER THE DEFENCE OF THE LEADUE OF HATIONS

The celebial pelicy of the imparialists has inscribed more than one bloody page in the history of humanity. Many volumes can be filled with descriptions of the brutalities and ruthlessness to which the toiler of the colored races in the various parts of the world are subjected daily, whilst piling up over-greater riches for their enslavers. In this short article it is our intention to relate the tragedy of a small Nottertot tribe, slowly dying from starvation in one of the reserves of ^{}Reserves, territories set seide for the natives. Usually the worst lands are set aside for the reserves, the best being kept for the Muropesa colonists. Besides this the crea of the reserves is limited and does not comply even to the very restricted requirements of the natives.

South West Africa.

This tribe, called the Bondels or Bondelzwarts, has been pushed out of the present Cape Province (Union of South Africa) and has migrated to South West Africa. Here it came under the power of Germany, who, following the example of other coloniers looked upon the Negroes as a race of people specially created by the Lord to work for the whites. Germany, however, was defeated in the world war, and South West Africa became a mandated territory of South Africa, which took upon itself the "holy mission of civilising", of ensuring "the welfare and development" of the backward people inhabiting the mandated territory. South West Africa, belonging to the mandate countries group C, should be adminiseled according to the laws of the mandatory, that is, South Africa.

The unfortunate Bondels very soon began to experience the great delights of this mandate system, and to understand that they had fallen out of the frying pan of German exploitation into the fire of South African slavery.

The Government of South Africa, which has great experience in "civilising" the "savage" Negroes, zealously commenced to carry out its It immediately levied taxes on the Bondels, including dog-taxes which in reality implied that the natives were deprived of the possibility of getting additional supplies of food by hunting, as the reserve in which they lived was insufficient to feed the cattle necessary for the upkeep of the entire population. These heavy taxes were introduced with the only aim of forcing the Negroes to seek work outside the reserves, i.e., to go into slavery for the white farmers. The Bondels, however, well acquainted with the delights of serving for the whites, and naively hoping for the defence of the League of Nations, showed resistance, refusing to submit to the heavy taxation. Dissatisfaction started amongst the natives, and when the police wanted to arrest the leader of the Bondels, Abraam Morris, the Negroes tried to prevent this. This was sufficient cause for the sending of a punitive expedition against the unsubmissive tribe. The native population were subjected to an air bombardment, many women, children and old men perishing. The natives likewise lost half of their cattle The refractory savages were defeated and "civilisation" was saved. This extermination of defenceless, and in comparison with the Europeans, unarmed people, took place as far back as 1922. We cannot say that the League of Nations did not react to this event. The question of the "uprising" of the Bondels, as this massacre was called officially, was a subject for special discussion at the Third Session of the Permanent Mandate Commission in 1923. The majority on the Commission were forced to recognise that the zealous South African administrators had provoked the uprising. This, however, was all that the League of Nations did for it the mandated tribe. As formerly, they remain in their reserve; the natives are still burdened with the heavy taxes in order to force them to work for the whites. The Bondels turned out to be more stubborn than was expected, and preferred death from starvation in the reserve to slavery for the farmers, especially as they know that if they do agree to work their condition would hardly improve. The farmers officially agree to pay the natives for their work as cattle herdsmen from 7/6 to 15/per month. In reality, however, the native having worked for several months for the farmer in many instances, will get one goat, and even more often nothing at all, as the cattle herdsman is responsible for all losses of cattle and is obliged to replace them. It is quite clear that the farmer can easily "prove" that he has lost something, and "legally" refuse to pay the wages owing. There is nobody to whom the native can complain against the farmers as no self-respecting representative of the authorities would defend the interests of the "savages".

At the present time from accounts appearing in the "Star" of October 28 and 29, the Bondels are in an extremely serious situation. For some time the reserve has suffered from drought, which has resulted in the pasture lands and the sources of drinking water being considerably reduced. The cattle, the chief riches of the Bondels, exhausted
